

Pretty, Young Hobo Happy In Her New Job 'Up Heah'

GIRL ARRESTED SOON AFTER ARRIVING

By JAMES J. DELANEY

You've heard about hoboes, haven't you? Of course. Maybe you've read about Southern share-croppers, too. Congress has been all worked up about them a number of times, lately.

Well, this is a story about a girl who was arrested in court for being a tramp. In reality she was a share-cropper's daughter.

The girl, police branded as a hobo, was very pretty. Her name was La Donna Milan. She is now a La Donna Milan. She is a girl with wavy brown hair and blue eyes. She is a girl with a Southern accent. She is a girl who was arrested in court for being a tramp. She was charged with murder.

Seeking "Maw"
"It's a girl that craves about the 'pe' 'pe' 'pe' to get work to let her 'pe' 'pe' 'pe' together. It's a girl who is a 'pe' 'pe' 'pe' to 'pe' 'pe' 'pe'.

One Man Rude
"Yes, and Ah was hungry for food, too, but Ah didn't get food for nigh three days. Ah lived on water and nerve, Ah guess."

20-TON U. S. Air BOMBER

FULL LIVING QUARTERS

Seattle, April 16 (AP)—Weighing 20 tons, the mightiest of all bombing planes, constructed secretly for the U. S. Army, was rolled out of its assembly plant for the first time today for preliminary testing of accessory equipment.

The ship contains complete living quarters, inventory and ice box.

Construction has been a guarded military secret for nearly three years. It was built by the Boeing Aircraft Company.

It has a wing span of over 165 feet.

It has four twin-engines of 1000 horsepower each. It is all metal and of a mid-wing type monoplane.

Latest Devices

The bomber is provided with the most modern of safety devices, including elaborate radio equipment, automatic pilot, deicing installation, apparatus for fire protection, wing flaps to reduce its landing speed, and complete heating, ventilating and sound-proof system.

The general arrangement of defensive armament is streamlined "blister" and machine gun turret on the top, bottom, sides and wings.

An electrical supply comparable to that used in a factory is carried on the ship. It is the first aircraft in the world to carry a full 110-volt alternating current electrical system.

Formerly, current used in airplanes was supplied through 15-volt current systems.

To remove the electricity generating load from the plane's engines, two auxiliary gasoline power plants drive a generator.

WEDDING LOANS TO AID STORK IN ITALY

Rome, April 15 (AP)—The Italian cabinet today decreed sweeping measures to promote an increase in the Italian birthrate, including the collection of marriage loans of up to $200 to induce couples to go to Italy.

To be eligible for the loan, each member of an engaged pair must be under 26 years of age. Repayment must begin within a year after marriage if no children have been born.

The cabinet decree provided also for covering the loan into a gift proportional to the number of children born to the state-sponsored families through reduction by ten per cent after the registration of each birth.

Typically the entire program presented by Premier Mussolini to the recent meeting of the Fascist grand council was adopted by the cabinet.

An annual state contribution of $2500 was ordered for the maintenance of a Fascist nation of big families, which will be similar to the union of the Fascist men and will assist its members in finding employment and solve personal problems.

A variety of tax laws were passed, including exemption of a family of five from the payment of taxes on property of large families. In each case exemptions were allowed to heads of families.

To the benefit of army officers, the long standing rule that their wives must have a dowry was amended.

The cabinet also approved decrees providing for "family aid" with higher wages for heads of large families.

Jazz Funeral
And Laughs,
Will Orders

New York, April 15 (US)—An unusual request is contained in the will of Edward Ruffin, who died on January 15 of this year.

It came to light when the will was filed for probate. The request read:

"If any of my friends wish to gather for a last remembrance of me, let it take the form of a musical performance, preferably at a dinner table where no trap will be shed for my unimportant demise, but where joy and good will—markedly absent in the vale of tears—will be present in my memory."

The will was granted her second divorce decree today in Suffolk probate court through testimony that her husband insisted upon kissing another woman at a wedding they attended.

"If you want your husband, you'd better go in and get him," said one of the wedding guests, according to Mrs. Leary, and she said she went into a room and made the discovery.

"Of course, he had been drinking," she explained.

The divorce was granted her from Philip Leary, on the ground of cruel and abusive treatment. She married Leary in 1930, three years after her first divorce.

Mrs. Leary also testified that her husband would not keep a job she found for him but would call at the place where he worked and borrow money with which to bet on the races.

The suit was uncontested. Mrs. Leary was granted custody of a daughter.

Uncontested divorces were also granted by Judge Frederick J. Dillon to Mrs. Suzanne Ott of Quincy, Mass., and to Mrs. Beatrice Davis of Roxbury from Harold C. Davis for the same cause.

Denies He Asked
Green to Resign

John V. Mahoney, secretary to Governor Charles F. Hurley, today denied published reports that he had demanded the resignation of Civil Service Commissioner Thomas H. Green during a conference in the secretary's office yesterday.

"Nothing to it," Mahoney said. He also denied the report that he intended to file charges against Commissioner Green with Governor Hurley.

Soldiers Protect 180 Millions Gold

New York, April 15 (US)—Selling the gold with an escort of 80 policemen moved $180,000,000 in gold bullion from the assay office to the Pennsylvania Station for shipment to the government's new stronghold at Fort Knox, Ky.

The job was done in four hours. A company of soldiers from Governors Island was placed on guard over the bullion. It will be moved in a special train over a secret route.

Sued for Divorce

Los Angeles, April 15 (US)—Charging incompatibility, Mrs. Faith Cole MacLean Moody, former wife of film producer Douglas MacLean, once of Washington, D. C., today had on file suit to divorce Captain Joseph L. Moody of the United States marine, a brother-in-law of Helen Wills Moody, tennis queen.

Bullets Cripple Pursuers' Auto Strike Officer

A statewide search was on today for two bandits who escaped state troopers in a wild chase along the Concord highway after they had fired a sawed-off shotgun at their pursuers, smashing the radiator of the cruiser, car and wounding one of the troopers.

The injured trooper, Domenico Guiffreda, 26, returned to the state police barracks at Concord this morning after being released from the Cambridge Hospital at 10 a. m. He suffered broken ribs.

GURLEY PUSHES CAMPAIGN AT 2 BANQUETS

Former Governor Curley today had his majority campaign well under way after attending two testimonial banquets, one of which he was accused of "crashing."

The former governor first appeared at a banquet given for the newly-elected Capt. Joseph A. Buccigross of the East Boston station in the Charlestown Armory.

Accompanied by State Senator Joseph A. Langone, Curley turned what had been intended as a tribute to Capt. Buccigross into a tempestuous rally, and received a few blows as well as thunderous cheers.

Senator Langone first addressed the gathering of 2000 men and women, launching a bitter attack on Governor Hurley and his "Cambridge favorite" and pledging support to Curley in his coming campaign for the majority of the legislature.

Langone, however, failed to pay tribute to Capt. Buccigross, for whom the banquet was given.

Curley was hoarse when he entered the huge hall, but cheered when he took the floor following Langone's talk.

Later the ex-governor appeared at a Mechanics Hall testimonial banquet given to former State Senator Joseph A. Stubbins, who stated he had "crashed" the party, to which he was unwelcome.

Here also, Curley was greeted with mingled love and cheers. Curley made his first and only reference to the coming campaign when he said:

"This is no place for a discussion of politics and party. This place is for one who believes this fight is now on."

Sends 'Ginger' His Own Picture With $500 Demand

By LEN ARNOLD

Chicago, April 15 (US)—You wouldn't call young John Anthony Busa subtle by any chance at all. What to call him will be decided by psychiatrists.

But he had probably carved himself a niche at the Department of Justice by providing what must be the simplest extortion case the grim G-men have ever solved.

Ginger Rizzuto, beautiful film star, received a letter demanding $500 on pain of death. The author, signing himself "John Berto," asked that the money be sent to a Chicago address and enclosed his photograph.

G-men had no trouble finding the place, and when they knuckled at the door, 18-year-old Busa opened it and cheerily said:

"Come right in. I've been expecting you."

Right at hand was Busa's diary, and the April 8 entry read:

"Wrote a threatening letter to Ginger Rizzuto today. This is the third letter to her, and now I'm thinking of writing to Clark Gable."

Commissioner Edwin K. Walker held Busa in $3000 bail and he was taken to county jail. Before hearing on April 28, Walker suggested that a psychiatrist have a talk with young Busa.

Youth Executed In Tennessee Chair

Nashville, Tenn., April 15 (AP)—Saw-faced Roy Wilburn Estom, 24, died in Tennessee's electric chair at dawn today while his wife and year-old baby waited outside the death house to take his body back to their home near Carthage, Ark.

He was executed for killing a Memphis filling station operator during a holdup.

Estom, after several hours of praying and Scripture reading, declined to talk before starting to the death chamber and stepped into the chair without a word.

By DAMON RUNYON

(Copyright, 1937, by Kline Features Syndicate, Inc. International and all other rights reserved.)

"The Phantom Burglar," otherwise Edgar Sanderson of Boston, who has just been arrested in New York, says that out of 1000 house robberies in the past six years he has profited less than $4000.

"The Phantom Burglar" is by no means phantomesque in physical appearance. He is a stoutish man, who does not look as if he could get his hand in the Hudson river without rocking the Palisades, as the late Wilson Mizner once said in describing an inefficient pick-pocket.

Moreover, "The Phantom Burglar" is 65 years old, an age at which most men sit down to cogitate their sins, and wonder how they can round themselves up with the Big Judge. "The Phantom" has pursued a long career at one of the most dangerous of all criminal avocations, and never made decent wages. He would have been better off on relief.

We presume they will send the old "Phantom" away to prison for a term of years, as is his just desert. If he was as burglarious as he is said to admit.

But it seems to us that they are overlooking a good bet in not utilizing a man of his experience by sending him around the country to deliver lectures to young men on the economic utility of crime.

Stress Wrong Point

We are no criminologist, but it seems to us that the lads who study crime, and who seek remedies for the prevention of crime, devote too much attention to stressing the moral phases of the matter, while neglecting the economic.

The average youth learns at his mother's knees that crime is all wrong. What he does not learn there, and what the seekers for remedies for the prevention of crime do not sufficiently emphasize, is that crime is a bad business proposition.

Probably the seekers themselves do not understand to what extent crime is a bad business proposition. When they use that well worked truism, crime does not pay, they mean morally. They mean that it leads to a felon's cell, or a felon's grave.

The fact that crime, especially among the young, is increasing in this country from year to year, gives rise to the thought that the youth of the land is not being impressed by moral preachment.

Economic Aspect

It may be that a few learned discourses on the economic aspects of the situation from learned savants in crime on the order of Professor "Phantom," would have more weight with the youth of the land. At least it could not have less.

Youth is pretty much interested in business nowadays. A fellow like Professor "Phantom" could probably hold the attention of youth by explaining to his eager young hearers why crime is the poorest business in the world.

His own case would prove his point. He gathered comparatively little in his 1000 robberies. His method was unique. After one jewelry robbery, which resulted in his arrest, he devoted his efforts to taking only money.

The weakness of a criminal business is that a man cannot pick and choose his market, or set his own prices on his loot. He is absolutely at the mercy of the buyers. Whatever time, or industry, or energy he puts into his business counts for nothing, though all that sort of thing in legitimate pursuit has a definite value.

"Haul" Scatters

The bigger the haul in any criminal enterprise, the wider the "spread," or distribution, of the proceeds. Often a job goes for the "fix," meaning for assistance, official, or unofficial. It depends on the nature of the job. We regret to say we have heard it rumored that sometimes, in some cities, the cops join in the feast.

But in the end the fellows who are likely to get the lion's chunk of the criminal's money are the hitlars, or lawyers. A criminal sooner or later requires a lawyer. The lawyer invariably requires money.

So the upshot of it all is the criminal winds up broke. He has nothing to show for his work. He is a social outcast. That is why crime, considered solely from an economic standpoint, and without reference to the moral aspects, is no good.

We note that the able and industrious Mr. J. Edgar Hoover, head of the government's criminal grabbers, is a great hand for going around delivering lectures on crime. We have read some of these lectures, and we find that Mr. Hoover, like the other students of crime, misses the economic phase entirely, especially as a crime deterrent to youth.

Aides From Jail

We do not know how Mr. Hoover draws on the public treasury, but we guarantee he would pack the halls with youth if he would summon to his assistance some of the lads he has locked up in the various hoagzooes of the land to tell the customers what a punk business crime is.

It might be a trifle inconvenient to carry around a speaker in Oregon boots, but we are inclined to think Professor Machine Gun Kelly would be quite a hit in the role of lecturer.

Professor Kelly, who now resides on Alcatraz Island, once got hold of quite a bit of money in criminal pursuits. He is broke now, and is reported fully converted to the theory that honesty is the best policy, not on moral grounds, but as an economic proposition.

LINDY KOPAP REVIEW SET FOR MONDAY

Trenton, N. J., April 15 (U.S.)—Governor Hoffman has officially announced that United States Treasury Department agents will arrive here Monday, their secret mission pertaining to the Lindbergh baby kidnapping-murder investigation.

Continuing Universal Service's exclusive dispatch, New Jersey's chief executive said three federal agents, intimately associated with the Lindbergh investigation would participate.

The meeting, to be held behind closed doors in Trenton's state capital, will be in connection with setting out the $25,000 reward offered by the state for capture of the kidnap-slayers.

Gov. Hoffman will have before him 26 applications from persons claiming the reward money, and naming the reward money, and naming the reward money, and naming the reward money.

LIFE CHIEF CLADMAN

The chief claimant is Walter Lyle, former gasoline station manager who "potted" a $10 bill of the reward money when Bruno Hauptmann bought five gallons of gasoline at his station.

Other claimants include a woman who is at above and stores for some months, but Lyle noted the name of Hauptmann's house number, a complete description of Hauptmann, and gave him to police.

Lyle claims the entire reward in proportion of his services from a prosecution of the world-famous case.

The three federal agents who will confer with Governor Hoffman on the Lindbergh case, even before distributing the reward money are:

Frank J. Wilson, chief of the intelligence unit, bureau of internal security, U. S. Department of Justice; and J. Edgar Hoover, director of the U. S. Department of Justice.

As word from LINDBERGH

Scarcely enough, Lyle has never met Col. Lindbergh, nor has he received any communication from him.

Asked what he would do with the reward money, since it appeared a substantial portion of the $25,000, if not all, would go to him, Lyle replied:

"I'll use part of it to educate my daughter. She's only nine now, but we must think of the future. I want to send her through college."

The real Lyle thought, he might use it to buy a house. He is now a salesman for the Warner-Quinn Co. and lives in Elizabeth, N. J. He had to settle there permanently.

MOTHER FLEES, LEAVES BABY IN HOSPITAL

and were placed on a new trail to the relatives' home in Albany street. There they found Mrs. Hartman.

Although she refused to return to the hospital, they sent for an ambulance, hoping she would change her mind.

She was adamant, however, and finally police had to be content with sending the ambulance back and calling her own physician to attend her.

Mrs. Hartman would give no reason for leaving the hospital, police said, except that she "just wanted to be home."

She said that after leaving the hospital she had crossed the grounds and walked through a gate into Albany street.

Later, however, Mrs. Hartman, in bed at the home of her sister-in-law, Mrs. Frank Hartman, explained that in the hospital she had become worried about her other children at home and was unable to sleep.

"I got to thinking of my other children at home and I kept getting more and more nervous," she said. "I saw a skirt and coat there, so I just put them on and walked out the front door. I didn't have any shoes."

She will be moved to her own home, under care of the family physician, and the baby will be sent home from the hospital, it was said today.

The baby girl was born at 3:30 p.m. yesterday and is in excellent condition.

RUSS WARSHIPS MAY BE BUILT AT FORD RIVER

By KINGSBURY SMITH
Copyright, 1937, by International News Service

London, April 15.—The Soviet government wants American naval shipbuilding yards to construct a powerful navy for the Soviet Union, International News Service was informed exclusively by a high authority.

It was learned Soviet representatives have approached the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corporation asking whether it would be possible for the corporation to accept orders for construction of several 35,000-ton capital ships mounting either 16 or 18-inch guns.

These ships, it was revealed, would be designed to form the backbone of a Soviet fleet ultimately aimed at making Soviet a big naval power and offsetting the advantage now held by the Japanese navy.

PAY WITH NEW GOLD
The Soviets would pay for the ships with newly mined gold which would be sent from Russia direct to the United States.

Soviet authorities, it was stated, consider American battleship designs the best in the world, superior to the British designs.

The number of ships the U. S. & R. would order and the caliber of the guns they would mount would depend on the outcome of bilateral naval negotiations now being carried on between London and Moscow. The British are trying to induce the Soviets to restrict the number of ships to eight.

It also was learned that Russia has sounded the United States on the question of obtaining credit as well as on the question of building a navy on a "competitive basis" with Japan.

Quiet negotiations between the United States and U. S. S. R. have been going on for some months, and according to information in diplomatic circles here, U. S. Ambassador William C. Bullitt in Paris has been instructed to contact the Russian embassy there and continue the talks.

The negotiations are reported to have reached such a stage that Britain is concerned regarding possible restrictions on the British cabinet, it is understood, will discuss the question when it meets next week.

Fore River Would Get Soviet Order

Should the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corporation accept the Soviet government's order for several 35,000-ton battleships, the company's Fore River yards in Quincy would be the only place to build them, according to A. C. Gould, general manager of the local office.

Admiral dispatches from London, Gould said:

"Fore River has the most adequate facilities for the job. It would certainly mean a boom for this part of the country, job especially."

Income Tax Drive Here Hits Rich and Racketeers

viously disproportionate return here for the "prosperity" period of 1928, compared with the returns for the less prosperous "recovery" period of 1935.

INCOME PUZZLER
One federal taxpayer now under examination charged himself with approximately $25,000 for his 1935 income tax, he learned. The figure was examined and accepted.

His return showed that his income came largely from corporate stocks and bonds. Every one of his sources of income was catalogued for reference this year.

Yet, said investigators, although market statistics show that his income from these sources should be at least four times what it was last year, his 1935 income tax return lists his taxable income at approximately the same as in 1934.

That this has been repeated countless times in income tax returns from those of large income is the contention of the Treasury Department.

TOLD TO GET MONEY
Sixthirty diverse departments of the U. S. Treasury Department are acting under direct orders from the secretary of the Treasury and have been told to get the money.

Even racketeers who have been treated more or less indulgently in the past are included.

Those whose sources of income are of doubtful legality have been getting away with their money. In nominal returns previously, one official pointed out.

For example, he said, Internal revenue agents are certain that the $500 in taxes one number pool operator admitted in his 1936 return did not in any way represent his real true taxable income percentage.

GAMBLERS MUST PAY
Last year, and in previous years, the government considered gamblers as a matter of course and because it was felt that such operators were at least "coming into the money."

This year, with the alcoholic tax unit inspectors, narcotics inspectors, revenue investigators, income tax inspectors, and customs inspectors, coast guard and customs personnel all concentrated under one head, gamblers, without exception and others of their ilk pay through the nose or go to jail.

There are at least six hundred cases of this type on file for immediate action, it was learned.

In the past, they have been listed as "perpetual" cases, to be scrutinized at some future day when unobtainable evidence could be gathered against them.

Today, these cases have been transferred to the "live" file. The unobtainable evidence has been gathered.

Treasury officials make no bones about admitting that the coordination of the six divisions of the department now constitute a "civilian" police force that will bring results in the form of what the government wants most at this time—cash.

The drive now under way here has been going on secretly throughout the country for some time. Agents have been at work in the New England financial revenue offices in Boston for ten days, mapping their campaign before the first shots were fired.

Big taxpayers come first, according to the government plan. But the little fellows will have their turn, too, one high official concluded.

Lovers of fine old architecture and of the old Boston better to take a last look at the old Rogers Building opposite the Hotel Brunswick before it is too late. It won't be there very much longer. That and the Walker Building, now occupied by the B. U. Business School, have at last been sold to the New England Mutual Life Insurance Co., and a new school of Architecture will be erected on the Cambridge avenue, between the Pratt Naval Architecture building and the Guggenheim Aeronautical Engineering Institute. It will probably be ready for occupancy in 1935.

The Rogers Building is 20 years to accomplish the efforts of the late architect, Robert E. Rogers. When the new Institute is built, it will be impossible to find a building on Boylston Street which was built on land granted to the Rogers family.

Star-Gazing Turned Into Pictures

Marion Grady
TAKING PICTURES OF THE STARS IS THE latest pastime of the girls over Ralcliffe way. The astronomy department of the institution has recently acquired two telescopes that enable the young ladies to photograph as well as to gaze to their hearts' content.

The small observatory is on the roof of Ryerly Hall. "Star-gazing" is in order at the new observatory from 7:30 to 10 p. m. on clear nights.

Professor Donald H. Menzel of the astronomy department at Harvard and Ralcliffe instructs the girls.

But Mr. Parker, himself, has since lost his enthusiasm for that kind of stargazing. He says it's too much trouble.

"You have to keep your skin covered with paraffin," he said, "and you have to keep putting some vasoline on the mask. The girls can continue to do it, if they like—but as for me, I think I'll stick to stargazing."

Cleaning, cleaning, white satin she, remains the most popular of wedding gowns, as the May and June brides-to-be are proving. Taffeta is running a close second—and a pink chiffon comes in to answer. Some of the more romantic and extreme wedding gowns are made entirely of pink lace.

Sports Notes
When A. Schacht made his debut in boxing a while ago, he had the boxing public in a state of confusion. It is the same site which the late Paddy McFarland used in his championship bout with Freddie Welsh in 1908.

GIRL ABOUT TOWN BY Ann Marsters

FASHIONS FOR THE GARDEN. It will soon be time to begin your spring gardening—and the shops are lining with garden equipment that's so tempting it makes you want to start a garden if you haven't already got one.

Red is the latest color for garden tools, and you might like a nice red wheelbarrow—which, by the way, may be used in a decorative way while having Sunday morning breakfast out of doors, when the weather per-fects.

As for garden clothes, designers are now taking them quite seriously. Gaily colored shirts and sunshades, floppy brimmed hats, modern versions of the old-fashioned sun hat, nets, gloves, kneeling pads, racks and so on are being made in new styles.

Little Miss Muffet Returns; Watch for Spider

If you are going to wear slacks this summer, to be really smart the slacks should be of one color and the shirt of another. Still, it is much smarter to go feminine and wear, for instance, a Miss Muffet dress in your garden or around your home. You can probably imagine that it has a tight bodice, full skirt, and puffed sleeves.

And don't forget to buy yourself a raffish garden doll. As you plan your garden you put out strands of raffia from her long hair, and use them to identify flowers from your collection of seeds.

New clothes styles require architectural new shops to set them off to the best advantage, so Stuart's of Wellesley and Hyannis decided last season. They erected their own buildings, and an increased volume of business is the result. Now another group of builders of modern design are being erected, and Mr. Stuart assures us that West Main street, Hyannis, is on its way to becoming another highway of women's fashions—along with the Rue de la Paix and Fifth Avenue.

Pine-Needle Skiing Sport on South Shore

The young people around town have begun to go pine-needle skiing again. The best of town ski trails (and one of the very few nearby) is in Plymouth in the Mammoth mountains.

The young men, Brampton Parker of Cambridge and Jack Turner of Marlboro street, were the ones to really start the pine-needle skiing fad (a couple of seasons ago) in this part of the country.

They did most of the making of the trail, which meant cutting down a few trees and collecting blankets of pine needles to carpet the trail. And they organized quite a ski-meet last Fourth of July.

But Mr. Parker, himself, has since lost his enthusiasm for that kind of skiing. He says it's too much trouble.

"You have to keep your skin covered with paraffin," he said, "and you have to keep putting some vasoline on the mask. The girls can continue to do it, if they like—but as for me, I think I'll stick to skiing."

In a Cocktail Glass

A Boston hostess serves grapefruit juice in cocktail glasses to her non-drinking guests. She says it is more than a drink, it is a cocktail.

Cleaning, cleaning, white satin she, remains the most popular of wedding gowns, as the May and June brides-to-be are proving. Taffeta is running a close second—and a pink chiffon comes in to answer. Some of the more romantic and extreme wedding gowns are made entirely of pink lace.

Sports Notes
When A. Schacht made his debut in boxing a while ago, he had the boxing public in a state of confusion. "Tommy Farr, British heavyweight champion, who fought Max Baer yesterday, trained at Jack Straw's castle, a London resort. It is the same site which the late Paddy McFarland used in his championship bout with Freddie Welsh in 1908.

Live Spectacle At Repertory

The once-popular and all-time-greatest, Vaudeville paragon, is re-created with such timely accuracy that it's almost as if the film, which continues a decade earlier than Harold Lloyd's Modern Times, is a sequel to Modern Times.

The film is a look at the problem of art in an abundance of costume in the famous yardstick of the film, which is somewhat reminiscent of the film Modern Times, which, like Modern Times, is a vehicle, Low Wallace's "Ben Hur."

The drool dauber, Warren Horne and Mary Naas, roval court companions whose winning phrase in life is to divert and amuse or bore ex-or, are at their comic best. As an Mowgli, who called upon to do be as the young girls do not, and from comedy, is a favorite as to be

Radioland Reflections

By N. F. T.

GRABBING money out of the air isn't a myth any more. The big game people are doing it with the greatest of ease and likewise with a will; in fact, maybe they're overdoing it.

It isn't so very necessary for such a notable to demonstrate diction, or have auditions. These non-essentials the broadcasters just make talk about when they want to discourage unknown, yet very often worthy, hopefuls.

On Wednesday evening last (WEEI) at 10:30 the first "Babe" Ruth broadcast came through. Grating that the idea was basically spinning, the bunnies certainly seemed to be reaching in the matter of speech. Naturally he isn't expected to be an oratorical model, award candidate, but back of the b roadcast a very nicely should derive more out of his "milk" effort, not to mention the "N. F. T."

It is a pity that nearly having him read a piece bare and forth with a script named John. Nothing much out of the ordinary in the way of actual "re-acting" came to pass at all and it struck me that any one of a dozen sport writers I could name might have done as well.

Admirers of "Singing Sam" will admit that he has a similar record covered from the recent auto accident in which he and his wife by quarter-hour. There's rather a cooking contest involved (WEEI) which will be outlined in detail again tonight between 10:30 and 10:45 p. m. Mr. a dial drawing card alright, in the Babe even as always on the diamond. Perhaps if his best friends will tell him he may find his loudspeaker began bawling away by mid-season.

When it's Hollywood Hotel time (WEEI) this evening from 8 to 10 o'clock, Louella Parsons, the Boston America screen editor and columnist, plans to introduce Grace Field, the edited young British actress. Grace is talented as a dancer, singer, comic and comedienne, even called "the woman Charlie Chaplin" over there. Little Davis and Humphrey Bogart are also to be guests with Miss Parsons, who will read a radio version of "Marked Men" to re-act during the 60 minutes.

Decided improvement in pronunciation has been noted on the part of that local news personality taken to the wire but here last week for his carelessness about pronunciation and proper style a surprise.

One of the new turns now in near broadcasts is the unique "Dinner" of offering WEEI on the air each Tuesday night from 7:45 to 8 o'clock. Original drama occupies the group of four, Summer Granby, Katherine Byrnes, Bela a P. Fawcett and Charles Kendall, by name, with James Buddell writing the dialogue.

were severely injured.

That weekly "Variety Show" half hour (WMA) ready and waiting for a coast to coast fling tonight (WMA) at 10:30 waits from the University of Southern California campus. This is where Edna Cantor, the daughter of Eddie Cantor, is mis-triculating by the way, and it is not her fault that she has been busy coaching her for a part in the program.

Fred Hory has been associated with baseball since 1905 as player, official, writer, chief writer at the old Huntington Avenue grounds, feature writer for newspapers and has paid his way to his followers to start rooting for him at a World Series network.

There are want to hear Fred at it for America's sake and, further, the arrangement would be a deserved crowning of his colorful career.
